

Unitarian Universalism affirms the dignity and worth of each individual. We welcome people in all their differences, including nation, race, sex, creed, gender, gender expression, affectional or sexual orientation, physical challenge, mental challenge, and socioeconomic status.

Because of this foundation, our ministers and congregations are able to offer couples an affirmation of their own beliefs and a freedom of choice in the content of their wedding ceremony. It is this affirmation and freedom that may lead couples to join a Unitarian Universalist congregation once they have found such a supportive, creative, and inclusive religious community.

We are a Welcoming Congregation.

Couples planning a wedding often seek out a Unitarian Universalist church. Some of their reasons:

- looking for a theologically inclusive spiritual community in which to raise their children
- desire a religious ceremony but prefer one that reflects their personal beliefs
- come from differing religious backgrounds and want a celebration of the union of their respective traditions
- do not have their own religious community, and do not wish to join one at this time
- have special circumstances that prevent them from having the ceremony in the church or synagogue of their family

The Minister will meet with a couple as often as needed before the wedding day. Some of the topics covered in these meetings:

Couple background
Relationships and Issues
Wedding Plans
Finalizing the Ceremony
Rehearsal

Fees: See the UUC Wedding Fees handout for current fees.

Remember to check dates with the Minister and the Church Office early in the planning. We will reserve your date once you turn in a Wedding Rental Agreement Form and a $50 deposit.
